 // History

The WCNDD nuisance program was developed in 2007 with the assistance of Creighton University College of Law and local Attorney Phil Pierce. It has since become a statewide program that is administered by all of the Nebraska Development Districts (NROC).

In most nuisance abatement cases, communities have historically used a complaint-driven process that seeks corrective action through fines and lawsuits. WCNDD's approach calls for a more positive, community approach that is designed to get the whole community involved.

Over the years WCNDD has proven that this program can be a vital community development tool that lays the foundation for economic development activities while creating social sustainability and local pride in the appearance of one's community.
